MURRAY BAY, Quebec, April 18—(INS)—Major James Fitzmaurice was expected to arrive here today from Clarke City, Quebec, in "Duke" Schiller's rescue plane which brought him there from Greenly Island after an overnight stop at Natashquan.

When Fitzmaurice gets here it is expected he will confer with Miss Herta Junkers, who arrived here by train late yesterday, on the problem of getting the replacement parts to the marooned Bremen at Greenly Island.

The place boasts the farthest north railroad station in the eastern section of the Province of Quebec. If he so chooses, Fitzmaurice may proceed from here to Quebec City by train.

The ship may proceed from here to Greenly Island or may remain there to await the arrival of the German fliers in another relief plane, if they decide to abandon the Bremen.

According to Fred Melchior, pilot of the plane, Miss Herta Junkers, daughter of the builder of the Bremen, is determined to bring the fliers to New York in the F-13 if they decide to leave Greenly Island without the Bremen.

BERLIN, April 18—(INS)—Baron Ehrenfried von Huenekeld's brother today drove Mrs. Herman Koehl to Bremen where she will await her departure to America. She is sailing on the Dresden tomorrow.

Another list of tax delinquents was handed to police officers today and more arrests are expected and perhaps more properties will be levied upon and sold.

ARSENAL DISMANTLING WILL TAKE ONE YEAR

Work Is Now Well Under Way, However, It Is Said

25 MEN ARE EMPLOYED

Work of dismantling the plant formerly known as the Tullytown Arsenal, at Tullytown, which was started a few weeks ago, is expected to take a year's time.

According to a representative of the Faus Engineering Company, which has received the contract for the work, there are 120 buildings to be torn down. These structures which are of frame covered with corrugated iron, are approximately 100 by 31 feet. "There are about two and one-half miles of buildings which have to be torn apart," it was remarked.

The group of buildings was purchased together with the strip of land by the VanSciver Corporation some months ago. They were formerly used, during the World War days for storage of powder.

Material that is being salvaged is being sold as second hand lumber. That portion which is purchased is shipped direct to the buyer, while the remainder is placed in the headquarters or warehouse of the Faus company.

At present 25 men are engaged on the premises, tearing down the buildings and hauling material away.

The day was continued, however, and quite a number of stray dogs were corralled and put in the pound, which was forced open last night and again Chester's work went for naught. Chester resumed his vocation today determined to rid the borough of all dogs.

DUNSTAN MURDERED BY BOOTLEGGERS, ACCORDING TO JAMES, SAY STATE POLICE; DARBY MAN ARRESTED IN CASE TODAY

By International News Service

PHILADELPHIA, Apr. 18—William Harold Dunstan, missing Doylestown salesman, was murdered by a gang of bootleggers Sunday, State Troopers at Reading announced today, after an all-night grilling of Calvin James, 26, of Upper Darby.

Policemen early today arrested August Schaffer, of Upper Darby, for questioning regarding the murder. Upper Darby police also have started a search of the isolated section of Delaware County for the bullet-riddled body.

James, police said, denied having anything to do with the slaying, but confessed that the Doylestown man was shot by a gang of bootleggers, Sunday morning. James said Dunstan had been killed because the bootleggers feared he might attempt to extort money from them.

Dunstan had known members of the gang, and only recently passed an examination for the position of Federal Prohibition Agent, but had not received an appointment yet.

James and Schaffer will be questioned further by State Troopers and District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn, in Doylestown.

James, Reading barrack troopers said, confessed that Dunstan had been killed by a gang of bootleggers and his body hidden in a lonely section of Delaware county, but denied he participated in the slaying. The salesman was shot to death according to James' story to the state troopers.

Dunstan had been posing as a prohibition agent in an attempt to "shake down" the liquor ring thus arousing their enmity, James said. His confession followed an all-night grilling by the state troopers. James then was taken to Doylestown where his confession was to be made in writing at the district attorney's office.

DOYLESTOWN, April 18—(INS)—Acting on the theory that William Harold Dunstan, 32, salesman, who vanished last Saturday, was slain by bootleggers, searching parties are scouring Bucks and Delaware Counties today, expecting to find his body hidden in some lonely spot.

Meanwhile Calvin E. James, 26, a former resident here, is being held charged with kidnaping. Dunstan's wife says she last saw her husband when he left home with James.

Police found Dunstan's automobile abandoned in front of a vacant house at Upper Darby, Pa. The car was near the home of James' brother-in-law, Disbrow B. Petty, a policeman.

Petty told State Police that James left his home Saturday and that his service pistol disappeared at the same time but the gun was returned on Sunday minus several shells.

James yesterday afternoon visited Lewis Schultz, a Doylestown real estate agent, who supplied his $1,000 bond when he was arrested there on a manufacturing liquor charge. James asked Schwartz when his case would come up for trial in the Bucks County Court. Schwartz advised him to call at the office of District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn to learn the date of the trial.

James was arrested there by Corporal Leh and he was immediately taken to Reading, where he will be grilling in the hope that he will tell what became of Dunstan. Police believe that Dunstan, who has been missing from his home in Doylestown since last Saturday night, was slain by James or a member of his gang.

According to the police, James admitted being at the Dunstan home on Saturday night, having gone there, he said, to collect money for a gallon of whiskey he sold to Dunstan. Mrs. Hazel Bregan, who boards at the Dunstan home, told the police that she had been Dunstan and James leave the place together late Saturday night.

Disbrow M. Petty, of 6970 Aberdeen Road, Upper Darby, a member of the Philadelphia Police Department of that place and a brother-in-law of James, gave the Bucks County authorities some valuable information yesterday concerning the whereabouts of James during several weeks past. He stated that James came to his home on February 25 last with Mrs. Sadie Griffith, formerly of Willow Grove, and had lived there since that time. Last Saturday night James, according to the statement of Petty, came to his home with Dunstan's car, leaving it down the road near a small park. James later left the house. Petty reports that when he went to his room to prepare to report for duty he found that his police revolver had been removed from its holster and another gun, his own property, substituted. When he returned home from duty the following day, he declared, he found that his police revolver had been placed in the holster again with five of the bullets replaced. Petty told the authorities that he asked James where he had taken the gun and was told: "I took it to the place; I'm sorry I did not return it in time." Petty said he did not question him further.

Petty and his wife went to Doylestown yesterday and gave his statement to District Attorney Eastburn. The former said that James and the Griffith woman arose yesterday morning and left the place in a hurry.

R. R. WORKMAN DIES AT STATION HERE TODAY

Charles M. Beck, Philadelphia, Fatally Attacked By Heart Trouble

WAS 60 YEARS OF AGE

An employee of the P. R. R. dropped dead at the passenger station here this morning when stricken with heart disease.

The man, Charles M. Beck, 725 West Tioga street, Philadelphia, was working as a carpenter and along with others was repairing the fence between the east-bound passenger and freight tracks here opposite the waiting room, when attacked.

Beck, it appears, was subject to heart attacks, and he stopped his work this morning shortly before 8 o'clock and walked into the east-bound waiting room, where he sat down for a few minutes. Fellow workmen went to his aid and inquired how he felt after he had had a short rest. He left them and went downstairs to the baggage room where he met Lewis Trude and asked for something for the pain which he stated he was suffering about the heart. Trude advised him to consult the ticket agent.

A few minutes later Beck was picked up on the floor of the men's room by Charles Adams, a fellow workman. He was placed in the taxi driven by William Brady and rushed to the Harriman Hospital, but those who accompanied him said that he died on the way.

Adams was about 60 years of age, married and had three daughters and one son.

UNDEVELOPED WATER POWER

When the federal water-power act was passed in 1920 and the development of 85 per cent of the water power available became subject to governmental control there was every reason to believe that streams which had done no more than gladden the eye would be utilized for the generation of cheap electric energy. In the first seven years after passage of the act plants with a total horsepower of only 1,500,000 were built and the prospect for the next ten years is for the development of only 1,700,000 additional horsepower. Of the 60,000,000 horsepower the streams are capable of producing, only 12,000,000 have been developed. Why is the rest wasted?

The answer is to be found not in the government's policy but rather in the economic barriers that hedge the hydroelectric company and in the remarkable efficiency of the newer steam-electric plants. That falling water costs nothing is a deception. Dam back the stream, form a reservoir, build a generating station—nothing seems simpler. Only the engineer knows that the initial cost of the hydroelectric plant is larger than that of a steam-electric plant of equivalent output.

Much undeveloped water power is awaiting development of a market, and many sections are on the threshold of that stage in their development which will justify erection of new hydroelectric plants.

THAT SATURATION POINT

A few years ago when there were about as many automobiles in the world as now are registered in this state, a great many people talked about the "saturation point" for the production of motor cars. They worried about the time when everybody who could afford an automobile would have one, and there would be no need to make any more cars. Theoretically, of course, when that point should be reached, all the motor car manufacturers would have to go out of business.

But each succeeding year as more cars were manufactured and sold, it became apparent that the saturation point receded like a mirage. The capacity of the American people to absorb new cars surpassed all that could have been foreseen, and the rest of the world, also, began to show a higher appreciation of American automobiles and a greater willingness and ability to buy them.

And then it dawned upon the person of average intelligence that, like a sponge, the market once saturated would not stay saturated. The prospect got better and better as the situation became more clearly understood.

There are more prospective automobile owners in the country today than there are cars registered. More families can afford two cars now than were able to buy one 10 years ago. The industry is approaching the point where it will take nearly all the present factories to replace cars going out of service every year, for the annual toll of scrapping and junking soon will be 4,000,000 cars, which is close to the nation's present annual output.

Love is awful stuff. It can make you think you are not being silly.

It is found that most college classes are led by girls. So are most of the students.

Why shouldn't the world have been created in seven days? There were no experts there to complicate matters.

"EIGHTEEN CENTS FOR PEACE"

Eighty-two cents of every dollar of the taxpayers' money, raised by the government in direct or indirect taxation, go for the support of its military projects. Thus government funds are collected largely for the purpose of carrying on the war interests and plans of the people. Only eighteen cents go for the promotion of peace interests. Aside from all the other reasons for outlawing war, there is the economic argument—what vast sums would be released for other causes if war did not figure so largely. Not while peace gets eighteen cents and war eighty-two can any government progress in the ways which otherwise would be possible. If we pay for war we will get war, and if we plan to devote to it in the future the largest proportion of our wealth, time, skill, and thought, war will continue to dominate the social and national relations of mankind.—The Congressionalist.—(Adv.)

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM WINS THIRD STRAIGHT

(By T. M. June)

Bristol High baseball nine won their third straight victory of the season yesterday when they whitewashed the fast-going Bensalem nine, 10 to 0, on the latter's grounds.

Wright and Tranotti served the mound for Bristol and for the third time this season the opposing team was held to two hits. Wright, during his five-inning stay on the mound, allowed the two hits, but not a man got further than second base. Not a man reached base while Tranotti was pitching.

B. Still and Piazza were the batting stars for the cardinal and gray, connecting for three hits apiece.

Ervin starred for Bensalem. Hard work is in store for Bristol for the rest of the week, as Lambertville with a strong contingent of players comes here on Friday.

GENERAL ELECTRIC Refrigerator

When you buy an electric refrigerator, do a bit of investigating on your own. Look under the cabinet, look carefully inside it, and, above all things, listen to it.

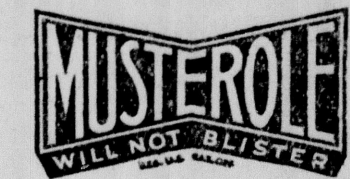

When you look under the cabinet do you find moving parts of machinery or no machinery at all? In the General Electric Refrigerator, you'll notice at once that all the models are up-on-legs. This means an easy job cleaning under them. And it also means that all the machinery is safely sealed away in the air-tight steel casing which you see on top of the cabinet.

Look inside. Is there really ample food space? You will find in the General Electric Refrigerator that the chilling chamber is amazingly com-
